

Prime Minister Kurti participated in the inauguration of the National Research School in Information and Communication Technology in Kosovo

The National Research School, according to the Prime Minister, is an important building block of the progress we intend to create and that the program will help develop innovative ideas that have the potential to create new products, businesses and jobs and therefore will lead this country towards transformative steps.